Editorial Review

From Booklist

Gr. 4^-8. A collection of stories from 18 tribal nations representing the major North and Central American Indian cultural areas. The short stories range from one to four pages and vary in complexity and readability. Some are pourquoi stories, and some are cautionary tales, but all involve the relationship of the two-legged and the four-legged with their immediate plant world. Bruchac provides solid background information in his introduction, and each carefully selected story is accompanied by a black-and-white line drawing. Comprehensive tribal information and source notes are included, and an extensively detailed glossary is appended. Karen Hutt
